Guilford seeks:
To free from provincialism and prejudice
To enable a student to gain a better understanding and acceptance of himself
To foster openness and curiosity
To develop objectivity
To encourage creative sensitivity

To fit a student for life today, with awareness of his personal and social responsibility in connection with today’s complex problems and to help him find joy and satisfaction in these efforts.
There are some seasons that change
And some that never will
But in the seasons of our minds no minute that passes is like the one before.

Where are we going—what time is it now? Unsettled, not at peace; we can not rest. There are new mountains to climb, new worlds to explore and in so short a spanse of time we are no more.

Events

This year provided a variety of entertaining aspects which supplemented the daily routine of studies. Under the joint sponsorship of the College Art Series, College Union, the Revelers' Club, the Convocation committee, the symposium committee, and individual departments, activities encompassing diverse interests were presented. The year began with Freshmen Orientation which featured the Royal Guardsmen. Homecoming was next with its dance, luau, bonfire, and concert by Jay and the Americans. Parents week-end featured the Pozo-Seco Singers. Throughout the year the Revelers' Club has presented a number of enjoyable productions. Numerous movies have entertained many of the students. The symposium was again a success. Memories will remain from a fabulous Junior-Senior Prom. May Day was highlighted by Charlie Byrd. The calendar of Events seemed to hold an enjoyable year for all Guilfordians.

As a Christmas present to a group of underprivileged children the College Union in cooperation with the Reverlers' Club sponsored an afternoon of sharing. "On a Snowy Day", an original Christmas play by Pat Gilbreath, and a party in the Union Lounge were enjoyed by all as the spirit of Christmas gained new meaning.

There really is a man at the top of the world.

A completely unique experience—a captivated class.
Anticipation, excitement, hard work, and clear skies combined to produce a memorable weekend for students and alumni. Festivities began on Friday night with a luau, movie and midnight bonfire, and continued throughout the night for many as last-minute touches were added to floats and dorm decorations. A clear and icy Saturday was the setting for a clash with the Blue Hose of Presbyterian, and a truly memorable crowning ceremony. That evening the sound of the Impacts was received by an enthusiastic audience with plenty of high spirits. Jay and the Americans in concert Sunday were considered the high point and a fitting close to a weekend that began and ended as an event to be long remembered.

The Guilford College Art Series, in cooperation with the convocation committee, brought us a variety of speakers throughout the year. Among those presented were: Charles Morgan, a defense lawyer who is a member of ACLU; Sander Vanocur, a well-known news commentator who presented an analysis of the presidential election; John Howard Griffin, an author who related some of his firsthand experiences in black society; and Julian Bond, the first Negro House Representative from Georgia who spoke on current problems in the United States.
All Work And No Play Makes For A Dull Day
This has been a year of change in dorm life. The Black Hawks of English Dorm have experienced a surprising change. Girls have overtaken the formerly male roost. To the sheer unhappiness of many rugged individuals, Cox has been evacuated. Students offices must now withstand the ominous atmosphere. Friends Home experienced a social revolution, however the co-ed dorm situation was only temporary. Suite living has given dorm life a new perspective. The New Dorm, complete with carpeting and air conditioning, was finished in October.
The Student's activities bring him into contact with a variety of areas. The dorm and library occupy a large amount of his time, while the grill room and the outside provide an escape.

The Guilford College Quakers, faced by the insurmountable task of overcoming lack of depth and frequent injuries, struggled to a 1-8 season in the tough Carolinas Conference.

The young Quakes showed spirit, desire and hustle under the new tenure of Coach Bob Lord. The poise and execution of a true winning team was not apparent until the final two games, when the team began to get the “feel” of a new system.
Guilford's pigskin power was highlighted by the running of Larry Funkhouser, Colon Carter, and Harold Allen. With Mike Hunt and Jeff Clark receiving the passes of Ray Tavalaro. The problem of opening holes was taken care of by Dennis Carroll, Jerry Borzello, and Gil Lindsey. The defense featured such standouts as Buddy Smith, Willie Inman, Pat Withers, and Ed Allen.
G.C. Welcomes Coach Lord

Guilford College is proud to acknowledge and welcome its new head football coach, Bob Lord. Coach Lord comes to Guilford after serving as an assistant coach at Wake Forest University.

Season With 13-11 Record

It isn't often a freshman basketball player receives such honors as All-Conference, All-District, and honorable mention All-American. But Guilford's center Dave Smith achieved these in leading the youthful Quakers to a 13-11 season record. Dave banked high in the Carolinas Conference, averaging 25 points per game, while shooting 60% from the field. Dave also received All-NAIA District 26 and Associated Press honorable mention.
Quakes Win Holiday Festival in Greensboro

Playing with a freshmen front court, Jerry Steele's Quakers fought for a 13-11 overall record. Guilford opened the season with three victories before completing the pre-holiday schedule with consecutive losses to Pfeiffer, Catawba, ACC, and Washington and Lee. Coach Steele's cagers regrouped during the holiday break to win the first annual Holiday Festival in Greensboro, scoring a season high of 118 points in a rout of Glassboro (NJ). Jerry Crocker tossed in 40 points to beat Hampden-Sydney 99-84 in the finals. Three more victories followed before a road loss at Elon. The final half of the season saw the Steele-men gain victories over Pfeiffer, ACC, Wilmington, Presbyterian, and St. Augustines. In gaining the Carolina Conference Tournament Guilford opened with arch-rival Elon. The Quakes bowed to a 81-72 defeat.

Coach Maynard warms up for the season
The 1969 Guilford College Baseball team was hit hard by graduation losses. After losing such starters as Tommy Grayson and Jim Bryan, who signed professional contracts, coach Stewart Maynard’s nine faced a rebuilding year.

The Quakes are led by co-captains John Whittington and Edgar Parker. Parker is an experienced pitcher who made the All-State team as a sophomore, and Whittington is a hard hitting shortstop. Pitcher Mike Stewart, 7-0 last year, will share mound duties with Parker.

Sophomore Bobby Chappell and freshmen David Pace, Vince Esposito, and Rex Terrell saw plenty of action with the Quakes this year.

These scholars are selected on the basis of character, leadership and scholarship. They are expected to help grade papers, tutor, or give some type of assistance to the faculty, and at times are asked to serve on student advisory committees.

Scholarship Society

The Guilford Scholarship Society was organized in 1937 for the express purpose of encouraging and recognizing high academic achievement. Students with quality point averages of 2.50 are eligible for membership after their fifth semester.
The B.A.S.I.B. was organized this year with a twofold purpose: To preserve an identity among the black students at Guilford College and to make the white students more aware of the black people— their goals, interests, and abilities.
The Guilfordian, the college newspaper, is edited and published by a student staff. Participation is open to all students interested in the work of publications.
The Quaker is a student publication of Guilford College. Editors are chosen by the Publication Board. Any student wishing to be a member of the yearbook staff may do so.

"By education we ought to understand whatever has a tendency to invigorate the intellect, to train the mind to thought and reflection, to mould aright the affections of the heart, and to confirm us in the practice of virtue."

1848 Board of Trustees

"For a while, it will be hard on us as administrators. Some students are going to be wrong, and some people will want to deny them the right to make mistakes. Administrators will have to wade through the angry letters, and colleges will lose some donations... But let us stand up for our students and be proud of them. If America is still on the way up, it will welcome this new, impatient, critical crop of young gadflies. It will be fearful only of the complacent and passive."

At the end of every year, every accomplishment, every significant event, there is a haulting moment when we distinctly differentiate yesterdays from this day.
Herein, on these pages, the 1969 QUAKER has attempted to capture the significance of one of these "yesterdays." Portions of it are already dated. Ten years from now, its viewers will marvel at how out-dated and different the scene pictured is. The QUAKER hopes that this book will hold something unique and individual for each person who views it. Stopping now to see that here is the ledge between the past and the years to come is the opportunity of all who pause to read the QUAKER pages.
